GAME IDEAS

1. Bunny Hop – Bunny Hop is a fun game for kids to play. All you need are two pillows. The kids are divided into two teams. One person from each team starts the game by placing the pillow between their legs and tries to hop to the end of the room and then back to the starting line. The team that finishes first is the game winner. If it's nice outside, you can take this game outdoors and make the “racetrack” even longer. For older kids, add challenging obstacles, like twists and turns or small objects that they have to jump over. Just don't use your good pillows if you're going outside!
2. Easter Bowling – This game is best for older kids. Instruct the kids that as they are picking up eggs; they can steal one egg from someone else but if the person they are stealing from catches them, they have to give the egg back along with one of their eggs. This is a just for fun game that can elicit lots of giggles. After the hunt is finished, give a basket of candy to the kid with the most eggs — then instruct them to share with everyone else.
3. Charade Eggs – Fill some plastic eggs with slips of paper that provide instructions for actions or activities. After everyone has finished finding eggs, round everyone up for a fun game of charades using the instructions. You can also divide kids into two teams and the team that guesses the most actions wins a basket of candy to share or some other prize. You can also put the slips of paper into specific eggs then tell the hunters to only collect one of those particular eggs so everyone will end up with only one charade to do.
